Tirani (tirani) replied to your LiveJournal comment in which you said:

Dave: It's all right in this instance, of course, but I'd appreciate it if in the future you asked me before giving people my screen names. I value my privacy.

Tirani: I voted in the poll, also. Anyone in the guild who's in their (level) twenties want to do Blackfathom Deeps sometime?

Their reply was:

- 1) Everyone on my list either 1) already knows who you are, and ergo could care less what your contact info is or 2) doesn't give a fuck who you are, and ergo could care less what your contact info is.
- 2) Sniping in my journal pisses me off. That could have been sent via email. That's your only warning. My journal, my rules.
- 3) It was a direct request by me, for the purposes of including you. If you don't want to be included, let me know, I'll take you right back off.
- 4) Every single person on my flist is someone I know and trust in real life. You are the sole expect to that rule. Do the math.

As I said, of course I don't mind in this case. According to Kayla I have met you, and you seemed cool then. My comment wasn't meant as a snipe.

If you want to remove me from the guild over not wanting someone shouting my contact information from the rooftops, then do what you like. I have no problem with you knowing how to contact me. I suggest you read the actual comment next time before you flame someone.

Their reply was:

It has nothing to do with the Guild. It has everything to do with treating someone I love and respect with a modicum of respect on MY journal. I've got a lovely little solution though.

You're now banned from posting in my journal. You can still read it, but you can't post in it. So, you can keep up with guild goings on until Vond gets the forum space up, if we get it, but you can't snipe at my friends.

You know what, scratch that. You're off my Flist. You're still in the guild, but you'll have to deal until if and when we get forum space.
